

HOMELESS AND MISSING MENTALLY ILL: A GUIDE FOR RELATIVES

People who have mental illness cannot always communicate their thoughts clearly or understand what others are saying to them. In confusion, some will retreat. Others have grandiose ideas and cannot make sound judgments. Sometimes they leave home other secure surroundings, and the become homes or missing. They can be gone for days, weeks, months or years. Often they leave behind distraught families, who are desperate to return their loved ones home or to another safe place. The following information provides some helpful tips to assist you in locating a missing relative. If you have a missing loved one with serious mental illness, the following steps and information may be helpful:

1. Notify your local police immediately of your missing loved one and provide them with all the information you can. If the person remains missing more than three (3) days, ask the police to place them on the FBI's National Computer (NCIC) list as an endangered adult. The computer network provides information nationwide. The network will give you a police number to use when searching for your relative.
2. When a mentally ill missing person 21 years of age or older is located, the police and other agencies cannot hold or ask that they be held against their will if they have not committed a crime. No one has the authority to force the person to seek aid or medical care against his or her will unless there is a medical guardianship or court order specifying what action to take when the individual is found
3. Prepare a one-page flyer, which includes a picture of the missing person, along with his or her vital statistics (age, height, weight, hair color, eye color, clothes last seen wearing, last known location, etc.) The following list of groups agencies, and organizations might be able to help if you contact them:

A Local NAMI Affiliates. Each local affiliate has a NAMI Affiliate Directory. Call you local affiliate and ask for a NAMI contact person in the state where the person what last seen. Send a description sheet or flyer to the local NAMI affiliate for circulation at their meetings

B Churches, Synagogues & Houses of Worship Houses of worship are often used as shelters and soup kitchens. Many homeless individuals contact the church they were affiliated with during their childhood. Ministers, priests, rabbis or other clergy may well recognize an adult who was once a child in their congregation.

C College Campuses Colleges and technical schools have lounges and cafeterias. Some of them are considered comfortable hangouts because they offer a place out of the cold or heat, food is available, there is human contact, and anonymity can be found among the crowd. Take a picture of the missing individual to the cafeteria and ask a staff member to help you. There may be a bulletin board where notices can be posted. Students have been known to be mistrustful of parents looking for their kids, so emphasize the nature of your search.

D Community Health Centers. Community health centers often treat people regardless of income or insurance. If your family member is traveling without insurance or case and need medical attention, they will usually use the local hospital emergency rooms. If the medical attention is not an emergency, they may be referred to a local community health center. The community health centers have all kinds of names: free clinics, Health Care for the Homeless, Blue Bus, Health Network, AIDS Center, etc. They usually have a community bulletin boards where you can hang the missing person's picture or your flyer.

E Creditors The person may have relocated and may be making payments on a loan or applying for credit. Get a list of previous creditors.

F Hospitals. Get a list of the public and private psychiatric wards from the local mental health administrator. Emergency room personnel usually remember people who come in from the streets. Be aware that they may not give you any information due to confidentiality laws, but you can notify them that you are a relative of the missing person who is interested in their welfare.

G Public Library The local library is a comfortable place for many people who are homeless. Many of the homeless shelters are not open during the day so people often use local libraries to stay warm, use the bathrooms, read, hang out and blend in with everyday life. The janitors know who uses the building for more than just reading.

H Mass Transportation Centers Bus and train stations are somewhat similar to libraries in comfort and convenience for the homeless. Unlike libraries, however, bus and train depots are not as easy to hang out in. The bathrooms aren't as clean and loitering is frowned upon. Airports are the best used unless of course the missing individual has access to airfare.

I Free Meal Sites Most urban areas have well-organized meal sites. Find one and ask about the others. People use meal sites most often near the end of the month and may travel from site to site. Everyone seems to know the regulars by name and face.

J Red Cross

K Salvation Army For a small fee the Salvation Army will file a missing person's report in their national computer system. A missing person's report will not be filed for anyone missing less than 3 months. Many Salvation Army locations also have shelter. Call the nearest Salvation Army regional office for further details:

Southeast US 800-939-2769
Northeast US 800-315-7699
Central US 847-294-2088 (Chicago)
Western US 800-698-7728

L Shelters There are public and private homeless shelters. Call your local Salvation Army, YMCW, YWCA or Social Service Agency for a list of shelters in the area. Most shelters maintain a list of those persons who have used the shelter and will usually tell you if they are currently living there or not.

M Social Security Office (Subject to regulatory change) Call your local Social Security Office and ask them who in your area is officially contract as the Third Party Agency. Example: A Homeless shelter in Madison, Wisconsin has a contract with the Social Security Office as a Third Party Query site. The shelter submits computer information on the name, date of birth, and social security number. The information is submitted to the central computer in Green Bay, Wisconsin. Information returned includes social Security and/or SSI Information: address of where the last check was sent and when, a payee (if any) and the amount of monthly benefit, and more.

N Social Service Agencies Someone who is homeless will often be referred to the Social Service Agency for General Assistance (welfare). The local Health and Human Services Office almost always runs these programs. Call an intake worker and ask who you would see if you came to town with no money and no housing. Most public agencies will tell you if your family member has been on assistance. However, your contact person at a homeless shelter may ask the same questions and get more answers.

What to do when the missing person is found

A General Information Services for mentally ill persons vary widely from area to area. Finding appropriate services for the missing individual at a distance will probably be a frustrating experience, your approach should be tailored to the missing individual's condition and wishes, as well as to the reality of inadequate services in many areas. Once a police report has been made in your city and the person has been found in another city, the police in the receiving city may be willing to transport the individual to the hospital for evaluation and treatment. They may also have a social service department themselves or provide linkages to other sources of assistance. Some states have interstate pacts between Mental Health Systems, which may provide transportation from one system to another. Call and ask your Mental Health Center or state Mental Health office for more information.

B Telephone Calls When accepting a collect call from a missing person, you may first want to ask where the call is coming from. This may not be advisable in all cases.

C Money While NAMI does not recommend or endorse the following companies; this information may be helpful when trying to get money to a missing relative.

- Western Union – If a person is out of funds and you feel comfortable sending them money, you may do so through a Western Union Office, using a prearranged code. Professionals suggest that you send as little money as possible at a time. This encourages on-going communication.

- ComCheck – ComCheck, a company of Comdata Network Holdings, Inc. allows people to send money to over 6,000 truck stops throughout the United States. ComCheck takes only Visa, MasterCard, or cash at designated locations. In order to pick up money, the person receiving at the truck stop will need to show identification. The toll-free number for ComCheck is 1-800-833-9110. They will be able to answer any other questions you may have about their service.

D Travel

- Airlines A pre-paid ticket can be purchased with cash or credit card from your local travel agent, over the Internet, by phone, or directly from the airline counter at the airport. There is a non-refundable service charge. On the ticket you may specify who has the right to a refund (if any) if the ticket is not used, or whether it is exchangeable (in accordance with the rules and regulations set by the airline). Ask your travel agent for details.
- Train A pre-paid ticket may be purchased from your travel agent or AMTRAK counter. There is a non-refundable service charge. This service is not available at all locations. In order to purchase a pre-paid ticket, both the point of origin and local AMTRAK counters must be open.

An I.D. is necessary for ticket pick-up. I.D. can be any legal document with the name of the traveler on it. Call your local AMTRAK office for more details.

- Bus A pre-paid ticket may be purchased from your local Greyhound station. There is a non-refundable service charge. This service is not available at all locations. In order to purchase a pre-paid ticket, both the point of origin and the local Greyhound States must be open. I.D. is preferred but the ticket can be picked up with a prearranged code. Other bus companies may have similar arrangements.
- Travelers' Aid International (TAI) A TAI office is usually located in a bus or train station. Try to locate the one nearest to you and become familiar with this organization. They can prove to be your best source of help with transportation needs. TAI can sometimes get charity-rate bus tickets (25% off the regular price). Although policy varies from state to state, in many cases it is possible to send a person home at no cost, although this may take a few days. TAI can generally provide for the person's basic needs during this interval. In addition, TAI can also board your relative on the bus, train or plane (during working hours) and make protective travel arrangements with other TAIs in route. TAI suggests that when at all possible send very little actual cash. If your relative is currently delusional, he or she may use very poor judgment in spending it or get robbed or "conned" out of the money. If possible, work through a TAI office and deposit money (in your city) or make arrangements with a TAI in the city in which the missing individual finds him/herself. They will disburse the funds to assist in buying food, getting a hotel room or buying a ticket.
